

Judith Mariscal Avilés

Judith Mariscal (Ph.D LBJ School of Public Affairs UT Austin) is Professor at the Centro de Investigación y Docencia Económicas (CIDE) and Executive Director of Centro Latam Digital, a regional digital policy research center within CIDE. She is member at the highest level (III) of the National Research System in Mexico (SNI). She is a founding member of the Communication Policy Research Conference (CPR-LATAM) organizing committee. Judith is Associate Editor of Information Technologies and International Development (ITID) Journal. She was member of the Steering Committee of the Regional Dialogue on the Information Society (DIRSI) and founding director of the Telecom-CIDE research program at CIDE for 15 years.

Judith Mariscal has directed numerous research projects at the national and international level around telecommunications regulation and policies promoting ICTs for development. She has published extensively about the first and second generation of telecommunications reforms in Mexico and is the author of numerous papers on regulatory policy in telecommunications, as well as the books: "Licitación 21: Public Policy Lessons in Telecommunications", (CIDE 2014, Editor), Digital Poverty: Prospects for Latin America and the Caribbean, (CIDE 2009, co-editor with Hernan Galperín) and Unfinished Business: Telecommunications Reform in Mexico (Praeger Press 2002).